MEMPHIS NEWS AND NOTES

On August 10th a group of ten of our members participated in a pilgrimage to a county court house to learn at first hand the advantages of searching records at their source. Bolivar, in Hardeman County, Tennessee, was chosen due to accessibility, completeness of records, and the advantage of being able to enjoy the cooperation of the county officials and the services of Mr. Roy Black, a member of our Society. Mr. Black, former Mayor of Bolivar and enthusiastic genealogist, graciously welcomed us, introduced us to the records and answered our questions. Each of us considered the experiment to be a delightful and informative occasion, and one to be repeated. It was a bright interlude for those of us who could not go farther afield "a ansearchin'".

Books recently contributed to the Society to be placed at Cossitt Library:
Roach, Roberts, Ridgeway & Allied Families by Fair, - this through the generosity of Mrs. Sherman R. Petty; and 1850 Census of Craven County, N.C. by Mrs. H. N. Gwynn. Thank you, ladies! Also, many thanks to Mrs. C.G. Young and Mrs. Rogers M. Clark for ordering, checking and placing in the Library the 1880 Census Schedules for Mississippi, Arkansas, Georgia and Alabama. The Society has on order several books that we think will prove helpful to many of our members. Those that have arrived are: History of Fairfield County, S.C., Isle of Wight County, Va. Marriages, Marriages of Albemarle County and Charlottesville, Va. 1781-1929, Marriages of Surry County, Va. 1768-1825, Marriages of Orange County, Va. 1747-1810, Some Marriages in Montgomery County, Ky. Before 1864, Essex County, Va. - Wills, Bonds, Inventories, etc. 1722-1730, Marriages of Goochland County, Va. 1733-1815.

The Study Groups held at the home of Mrs. Joseph Mobley on August 21st and Miss Myrtle Shelton on September 18th were well attended. Several new members seemed to enjoy this opportunity for fellowship. We welcome our newest recruits and express the hope that our mutual association will be helpful. Old timers will find it hard to realize that our in-town membership is approaching 100.

Our October meeting provides the long anticipated discourse on Research in South Carolina. Mrs. Charles Young is our South Carolina "expert". Her information on this area is most worth while. This meeting is held two weeks later than usual so that Mrs. Berry B. Brooks, our founding president, Mrs. W. K. Page, and yours truly may complete a six weeks tour of Southern Europe. October 30th is the date!

Although our work continues until after the January meeting, this is our last opportunity to thank the present Board of Directors for their kind cooperation, -- Mrs. James Cartwright, Mrs. G. C. Moore, Mrs. E. M. Standefer, Mrs. Charles Gilley, Mrs. I. G. Duncan, Mrs. Harry O'Hara and Mrs. Hope Brooks. Mrs. Lawrence Gardiner, Mrs. Berry B. Brooks and Mr. Donald Spencer have generously responded with their time when called upon.

Remember: "You have to do your own growin', no matter how tall your grandfather was". - Anon -

OVER THE EDITOR'S DESK

The editorial staff of "Ansearchin' News" sincerely hope this year's work has benefited the majority of our members. We are a group of amateur volunteers striving to present the material we are able to gather in the best possible manner. Errors are bound to occur, such as the non-existent page 74 in the July issue. Don't ask why it was left out, it was just one of the many small things that can happen when one thinks she has double-checked everything.

We also hope the new price of $5.00 for our publication will not keep you from re-subscribing next year. It is a simple matter of arithmetic that we cannot continue to put out a bulletin of this size when the revenue does not cover the expenditures.

NEWS FROM OUR FELLOW PUBLISHERS

We are sorry we have not had the space this year to review all of the many fine exchange publications we receive. We have had to limit our remarks to those carrying articles of interest to research in Tennessee. All exchange editions are used at our monthly study group meetings and are then placed in the Genealogical Section of Cossitt Library where they may be enjoyed by all who go there to do research.

We welcome the Birmingham Genealogical Society (4320 - 6th Ave., South, Birmingham, Alabama) to our exchange list. This Society publishes a quarterly called "Pioneers" and dues are $2.00 a year.

Saint Paul advised both Timothy and Titus (I. Tim. 1:4 and Titus 3:9) to shun genealogy. Many and varied have been the interpretations of his advice. With the views of commentators and theologians this thesis shall have nothing to do, further than to state that St. Paul had no reference whatsoever to the civil genealogies of the Jews, whereby they traced their descent from the patriarchs. The Apostle referred to that interest in genealogies of the spirits and eons which finally flowered into Gnosticism.

It is impossible to "shun genealogies". Interest in ancestry has been deep-rooted in man's mind for centuries. Gibbon, the historian, says that "A lively desire of knowing and of recording our ancestors so generally prevails that it must depend on the influence of some common principle in the minds of men. We seem to have lived in the person of our forefathers. The knowledge of our own family from a remote period will always be esteemed as an abstract preeminence, since it can never be promiscuously enjoyed. If we read of some illustrious line, so ancient that it has no beginning and worthy that it ought to have no end, we sympathize in its various fortunes".

Among nearly all races of men there seems to be an instinctive feeling that a long line of honourable ancestry is a matter for legitimate pride. The admonition of St. Paul, to shun genealogies, would, if taken literally, be a contradiction of the Fifth Commandment to "Honour thy father and thy mother". Devotion to genealogy is nothing more or less than an extension of that commandment.

To those who would, by a mole-eyed literalism of interpretation, make St. Paul say what he would have repudiated, it may be pointed out that the Bible is a book of genealogy. The Old Testament glories in it and the New Testament begins with it. No man can understand the sacred volume who shuns genealogy. No one can understand any history, sacred or profane, who fails to give due regard to the descent of those who played the important roles therein. Without genealogy the study of history becomes comparatively lifeless.

The most cursory reading of the Old Testament will convince anyone of the great care with which the Jews kept the records of the generation of their families. This characteristic of the Hebrews is illustrated in the opening chapters of the New Testament. The Gospel of St. Matthew traces the lineage of the family of Jesus back to David. And the Gospel of St. Luke does not let the genealogical record of the Christ stop with the king of Israel, but traces it back to Adam.

Nehemiah declares that, when he had rebuilt the walls of Jerusalem, his God put it in the heart to gather all the nobles, rulers, and people so that they might be reckoned by genealogy. He found a register of the genealogy of those who had come up from Babylon. He also tells us that certain priests of mixed blood, descendants of the Gileadites, sought their register among those who were reckoned by genealogy and, failing to find it, they were put from the priesthood as polluted (Nehemiah, chapter 7).

It is recorded in the Book of Numbers (ch. 1) that Moses was commanded to take the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel, after their families, by the house of their fathers. Following this declaration of pedigrees, the Israelites were commanded to pitch their tents, each by his own standard and with the ensign of his father's house. It is often contended that the beginnings of heraldry are traceable to these standards and ensigns mentioned in the first and second chapters of the Book of Numbers.

There are many references in both Old and New Testaments concerning the origin of names of individuals and tribes. Indeed such origins are leading features of Bible genealogies. And the matter of why we are named as we are is an interesting phase of all genealogy. It is fascinating to trace a name through the various changes wrought by time, and by migration from country to country, back to the land of its origin and back to its original form; to discover its affinities with other names in kindred languages, or even in widely differing tongues. Surnames are full of significance, though the meaning of many of them has been obscured or lost under the accumulated lumber of time. These obscured meanings, if brought to light, would make clear a vast field of family history. Ancestral habitats, traits, honours, heroisms, struggles and nobilities would appear.

No civilized man will affect to despise genealogy, since by it we are made aware of our ancestral heritage. And whether that heritage be good or ill it is well to be aware of it. If the heritage be rich, a knowledge of it will spur one on to live up to the high standards of his ancestors. Yet, despite these truths, there are many who feel that this matter of ancestry, like Ulysses' bag of winds, should be left securely closed. John G. Saxe gave expression of this sentiment in the following lines from his "The Proud Miss McBride":

Depend upon it, my snobbish friend,
Your family thread you can't ascend,
Without good reason to apprehend
You may find it waxed at the other end
By some plebeian vocation!
Or worse than that, your boasted line may
End in a loop of stronger twine,
That plagued some worthy relation.

But if some "worthy relation" went to his long awaited home by way of the "loop of a stronger twine" is it not well to know it? May not a worthy man take as much pride in having escaped from ignoble ancestors as one takes in maintaining the traditions of illustrious forbears? Praiseworthy is the man who, being of noble forefathers, strives to so live that he will bring no discredit upon his good family record. Equally deserving of praise and honour is the man who lifts himself from obscurity or from an evil heritage by his own will, and comes to a place of usefulness in a needy world. It is eternally true that worth makes the man. It is equally true that the record of a long line of honourable ancestors is a mighty incentive to men and women to lead such lives as will support the glory of their forefathers. History abounds in the names of men and women who probably would have been content with mediocrity and obscurity had they not been spurred on by a sense of family pride and obligation.

Hereditary rank is repudiated in America, and happily so, but hereditary physical, mental and moral qualities cannot be repudiated or denied. There are certain strokes of character by which a family may be as clearly distinguished as by its physical features. And certainly no one will deny that physical tendencies and characteristics are hereditary. As true as Holy Writ, was the old saying to the effect that "The aquiline nose runs in the family of the Bonapartes, the thick lip in the House of the Hapsburgs and the bald head in the House of Hanover". Grant Allen, in his "Life of Charles Darwin", declares that "The great man springs from an ancestry competent to produce him. He is the final flower and ultimate outcome of those converging hereditary forces which culminate at last in the production of his splendid and exceptional personality". Ralph Waldo Emerson held views in substantial agreement with this quotation from Allen and, on one occasion, exclaimed, "How shall a man escape from his ancestors? How shall he draw from his veins the black drop which he drew from his father's or his mother's life!"

Herbert Spencer declared that "When one comes into life the gate of gifts closes behind him for he has then received the ultimate gift of heredity". The very heart of the teaching of the celebrated Ribot is contained in the following words: "Heredity presents itself to us as a biological law that is inherent in every living thing, having no other limits than those of life itself. The law of hereditary transmission has its rise in the very sources of life. All that has been acquired, impressed or altered in the organization of individuals during the course of their lives is preserved by generation and transmitted to the new individuals which spring from those who have experienced these changes".

But nothing in this thesis is to be interpreted as license for boasting on the part of those of proud lineage. Rather let the wisdom of Seneca be remembered: "He who boasts of his descent praises the merit of another". It should also be borne in mind that birth and ancestry are matters over which we had no control and therefore can hardly be placed to our credit. Mere family traditions never made any man great. A man's own thoughts and deeds are his passports to immortality. On the other hand let no man disparage good breeding. Bishop Warburton aptly said, "High birth is a thing I have never known anyone to disparage except those who had it not, nor have I ever known any one to boast of it who had anything else worth boasting of". Instead of boasting of illustrious sires let us follow with meekness their worthy example knowing that: "They who on glorious ancestors enlarge, Produce their debts, not their discharge".

The study of genealogy is a worthy pursuit. There is sound wisdom in the advice of Bildad the Shuhite who counselled Job to "Enquire of the former age and prepare thyself to the search of their fathers ... and they shall teach thee and utter words out of their heart". Let men cherish their family traditions without boasting. Let the proud family history be regarded as reveille instead of taps. Let the well-born join with Homer in saying, "Our ancestors we must gladden, never sadden, by our lives".

* Dr. Marshall Wingfield (1893-1961), late minister of the First Congregation Church of Memphis, Tennessee, historian, author, and genealogist has left several books of genealogical interest as well as this article that we publish in his memory. Dr. Wingfield was one of the early advocates of genealogical research to the people of this area and he will be sadly missed. A biographical sketch of Dr. Wingfield's life is to be found in Who's Who in America, he having been included in that publication for many years. He had been President of the West Tennessee Historical Society for over twenty years and a member of the Tennessee Historical Commission. This testifies to his interest in Tennessee, but his many friends knew his heart belonged to his native State of Virginia.
